

Our Stories About Growing Up As People Of Colour

Growing up as a person of colour is a unique and challenging experience. We often face discrimination and racism, and we may feel like we don't belong. But we also have a lot to offer the world. We are resilient, creative, and passionate. And we have important stories to tell.

This anthology is a collection of essays from 25 people of colour about their experiences growing up. These essays are honest, raw, and inspiring. They explore the challenges and triumphs of growing up as a person of colour in a world that often doesn't understand us.

We hope that this book will help you to feel seen and heard. We hope that it will inspire you to share your own story. And we hope that it will help to create a more just and equitable world for all.

Here are some of the essays included in this anthology:

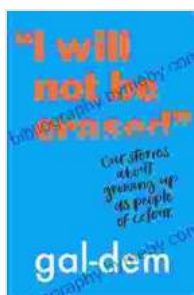

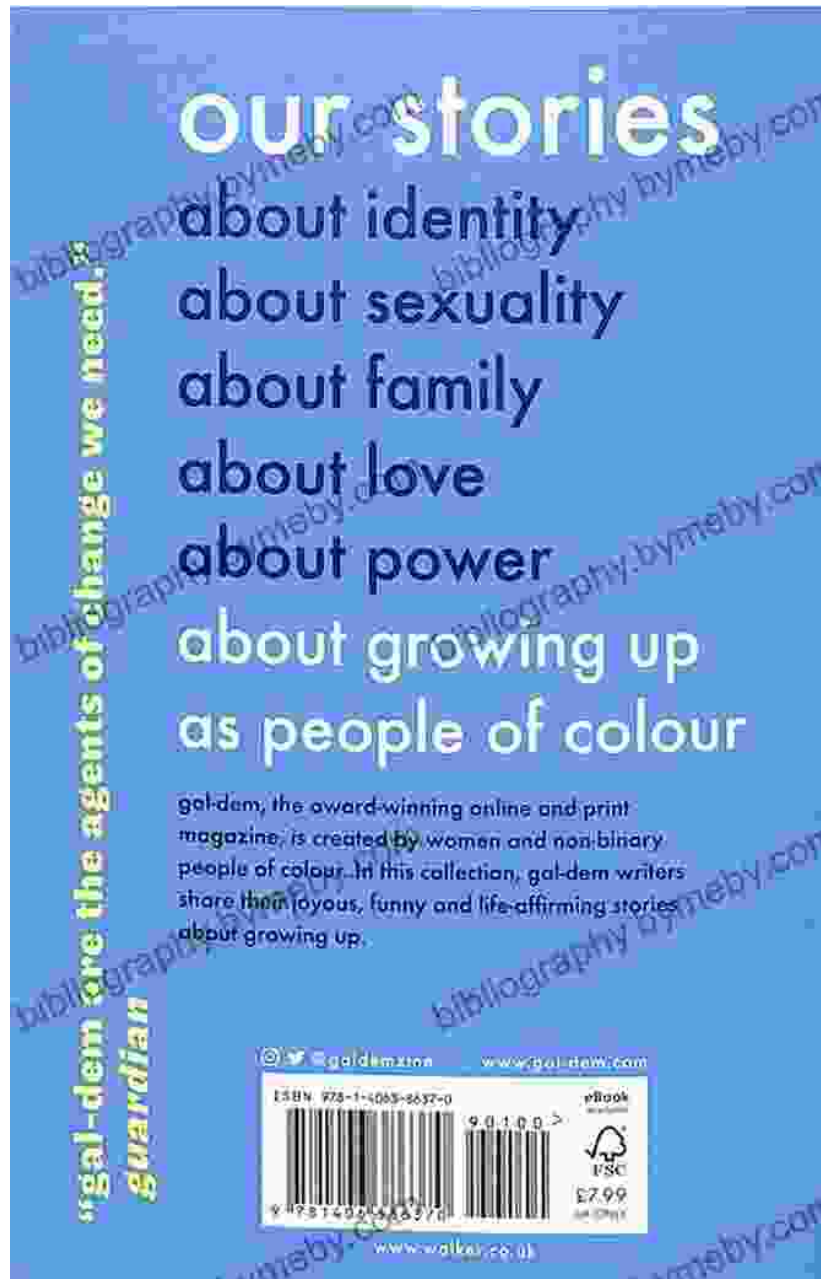

- "My Name Is Not 'Ching Chong'" by Jenny Zhang
- "The Color of My Skin" by Junot Díaz
- "Growing Up Black in America" by Michelle Obama
- "The Talk" by Zadie Smith
- "Brown Girl Dreaming" by Jacqueline Woodson
- "Between the World and Me" by Ta-Nehisi Coates
- "The Fire Next Time" by James Baldwin
- "Homegoing" by Yaa Gyasi
- "Americanah" by Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie
- "The Hate U Give" by Angie Thomas

These essays are just a small sample of the many stories that people of colour have to tell. We hope that you will read them and be inspired to share your own story.
