Think Pink: The Story of Depatie Freleng is the definitive biography of the legendary animation duo that created some of the most iconic cartoons of all time, including The Pink Panther, The Ant and the Aardvark, and The Inspector.

Authors Mark Evanier and Michael Mallory have spent years interviewing Depatie and Freleng, as well as their friends, family, and colleagues. The result is a fascinating and revealing portrait of two of the most influential figures in the history of animation.

Depatie and Freleng were born in the early 1900s and grew up during the Golden Age of Animation. They began their careers as animators at Warner Bros., where they worked on such classic cartoons as Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck. In 1946, they left Warner Bros. to form their own animation studio, Depatie-Freleng Enterprises.

Depatie-Freleng Enterprises quickly became one of the most successful animation studios in the world. The studio produced a wide range of cartoons, from the slapstick comedy of The Pink Panther to the more sophisticated humor of The Ant and the Aardvark. Depatie and Freleng also produced several feature films, including The Pink Panther (1963) and The Great Race (1965).

Depatie and Freleng were known for their innovative animation techniques and their ability to create memorable characters. Their cartoons were praised for their wit, charm, and originality. Depatie and Freleng were also pioneers in the use of television animation. They produced several successful television series, including The Pink Panther Show and The Inspector.

Depatie and Freleng retired from animation in the early 1980s. However, their cartoons continue to be enjoyed by audiences around the world. Think Pink: The Story of Depatie Freleng is a must-read for anyone interested in the history of animation or the lives of two of its most legendary figures.
